

Electrical safety

Do your employees work on or near live installations?
Then they must be instructed in electrical safety.

It is mandatory by law that such instruction is done on a regular basis. The recommendation is to do it once a year.

With this course you will achieve a thorough knowledge of correct electrical safety behavior and the company will have documentation that instruction has taken place.

It is always a risk to work on live installations and the consequences of an accident can be severe. Minimize the risk of accidents with proper training in this electrical safety course.
